New England Patriots take Chelsea youth through basic training

Patriot Cornerback Devin McCourty works out with local youth as part of United Way's Hometown Huddle event this week in Foxborough. Hometown Huddle is a long-standing partnership between the New England Patriots and United Way aimed at encouraging more youth to get active and make healthy decisions. Other Patriots lending a hand included: Linebacker Rob Ninkovich and offensive linemen Rich Ohrnberger and Quinn Ojinnaka. Youth from the Jordan Boys & Girls Club in Chelsea and four other Massachusetts organizations took part.
